End of Polio Remains March of Dimes Goal

THIS IS POLIO TODAY in Detroit, Mich., where a serious outbreak of the supposedly conquered disease flared in late summer. Most of the new victims did not have their Salk vaccine shots. The iron lung patients shown here are at Herman Kiefer Hospital. Polio is one of the Three Faces of Crippling dependent on the 1959 March of Dimes. The others are arthritis and birth defects. Patients of all three diseases need help.

The complete and final eradication of polio still remains a prime concern of the National Foundation as it goes into its 21st annual March of Dimes.

The Salk vaccine, developed with March of Dimes funds, provides a powerful weapon for knocking out polio. With this victory in sight, even though not yet achieved, the National Foundation is preparing to march "Toward Greater Victories" in the realm of public health.

Initial new goals in this broad health program are arthritis and birth defects. But the National Foundation is still pledged to give patient aid to all polio victims past or future who need its help.

Estimates indicate some 150,000 survivors of paralytic polio might benefit from modern techniques of rehabilitation pioneered by the National Foundation. Some 50,000 are already on its chapters' patient aid rolls.

In polio research the National Foundation is seeking to increase the effectiveness of the Salk vaccine; indications are that it is 90 per cent effective with three properly spaced shots. Also being studied is a "live" virus vaccine that can be taken orally.

The Salk vaccine is a "dead" virus vaccine requiring a series of injections. Other National Foundation researchers are looking for better ways to lessen the crippling after-effects of polio.

While polio is on the run it is still crippling people more than three years after development of a preventive vaccine. Accordingly, the National Foundation vaccination education program to prevent unnecessary crippling must continue and the stricken must be helped.

Unparalleled Challenges Face State Administration And Legislature

UNPARALLELED CHALLENGES face G. Mennen Williams, his all-Democratic administration and half-Democratic legislature in 1959, the most difficult since Michigan became a state 112 years ago. Michigan is broke and faces a $100,000,000 deficit as the legislature convenes.

During a decade in office, Williams has asked for more services to expand virtually all services. The problem has not been a simple one for Williams or his political opponents.

Williams on one side is pushing for more services to accommodate the state's booming population. Republicans on the other hand, are trying to perform services within the framework of available funds.

Williams, in effect, says it is impossible without more revenue. Republicans partially agree, but say some frills of government can be eliminated and the money diverted to the necessities.

DEMOCRATS WON an even 55-55 split in the House of Representatives last Nov. 4, and there lies the problem for the party.

Everything accomplished or not accomplished by the House will be half the responsibility of each party. The situation leaves Republican politicians rejoicing in a "sour grapes" sort of way.

The proposed income tax program logically will start in the House. A House-sponsored study committee is making the proposal after two years of research.

Because that is the case, the Senate must wait on the House before moving ahead on appropriations. The key to the 1959 session, thus, is the House.

There are really critical needs in higher education, public health, mental health and public welfare, where a deficit of up to $15,000,000 will exist next June 30.

Prisons are overcrowded. The new medium security institution at Ionia is half-complete, with no further appropriation in sight to make it a model of correctional endeavor.

Williams has remained silent on how to pay for the necessary increases in spending.

In the past, he has pushed hard for a corporation profits tax, but without success. Last year he urged a boost in the intangibles levy until it was voted that thousands of private bank accounts would be affected.

He has refused to go on record for or against the new income tax proposal, though it is obvious that infatigable Democrats in the legislature are opposed to it.

Another controversy revolves around this point.

Williams takes the constitutional view that the legislature must raise enough money to cover the cost of government by some means at its disposal. This, of course, means taxes someone must pay.

The legislature reasons that an administrator, Gov. Williams, must not only go into detail about the needs of the state, but recommend plausible means to pay for them.

Williams advanced the corporation profits tax until Republicans came up with the idea that high taxes in Michigan are driving business out of the state.

His intangibles tax idea was borrowed from a preliminary report of the Republican legislative study committee.

Michigan's financial structure makes it a state subject to crises. When the state levies a tax, local governments contend that they are eligible for a share of its yield.

In too many cases, funds are earmarked for specific uses so the legislature has little control of money spent.

That's why, for instance, the state gets only a small share of the sales tax. The school system gets two of the three per cent, a half per cent goes to the state and the other half per cent goes to cities, townships and villages. Each governmental unit gets its percentage regardless of need.

A similar situation affects most of the tax plans in effect in the state.

The whole picture presents the challenge to Williams and his Democratic administration. Major responsibility has shifted, by the vote of the people in the last election, to Democrats. The last remaining hold Republicans have is in the Senate, where they have a 24 to 12 majority. This gives them an important "veto" power. Legislation must now be passed in the House, where there is an even party split, passed in the Senate, which is Republican controlled; not vetoed by the Democratic Governor.

Summer Resident Retires From Newspaper

Clarence G. Livengood, who maintains a summer home on the Ausable River east of Grayling, has retired from the South Bend Tribune of South Bend, Indiana, after 52 years with that newspaper.

Mr. Livengood, who has many friends in and around Grayling, joined the Tribune on April 6, 1907 as an advertising collector. Except for 18 months spent in the armed services during World War I, he has been steadily employed on the newspaper which grew from 7,000 circulation when he first went to work to 110,000 now and Indiana's third largest daily.

Mr. Livengood really began working for the Tribune in 1903 when he began carrying newspapers on a route at Lakeville, suburb of South Bend. Mr. Livengood also undertook many duties on WBSB, the Tribune's radio station often doubling as announcer. He covered many of Notre Dame's football games. He was also in charge of the Golden Gloves boxing promotion in South Bend when it was sponsored by the Tribune.

Mr. and Mrs. Livengood have left for Florida for several weeks after which they will go to Bimini Island in the Bahamas for several months fishing. Leaving there in March, the Livengoods will spend some time in California with relatives before coming to Grayling for the summer.

Livengood and the former Miss Ruth Cohn were married in South Bend in 1919. They have two daughters, Mrs. Richard Kimmel of Waukegan, Illinois and Mrs. Paul G. Francisco of Cleveland, Ohio, and one son, Lt. John Livengood, a Navy pilot based at Coronado, Calif.

Michigan's Factories, Farms and Stores Depend on Trucks

Manufacturing, farming, the retail business—all things in common: each needs transportation facilities. (Nationally trucks haul more than 3 times as much as all other systems combined!)

And, since the motor truck provides fast, flexible, direct service unequalled by any other form of transportation, more tonnage is shipped by truck in Michigan than in any other state. (Nationally trucks haul more than 3 times as much as all other systems combined!)

Every truck you see on the road is working to help keep Michigan's economy humming, to help employment and sales high. There isn't a corner of the state that isn't served daily by trucks. And factories and retail centers can be located anywhere and be assured of efficient truck service so long as they're on a road.

Priced Out Of Market? . . .

This country has an enormous stake in world trade. We are the world's foremost exporter, as well as importer. Millions of jobs depend on U. S. sales to foreign markets.

Yet there is a danger that wage inflation may price U. S. goods out of these markets.

This is the point of a speech made by Ernest R. Breech, Chairman of the Board of the Ford Motor Company. He recently visited Europe after an interim of four years — and found that "things are happening so unbelievably fast that the old Europe is hardly recognizable." Industrial developments on the most spectacular scale are taking place. Output of goods and services is increasing at a great rate. And that isn't all. The quality and character of plants and other facilities are showing extraordinary improvement. New techniques and practices are being successfully put into effect. In Mr. Breech's words: "Western Europe seems to be riding the private-enterprise road out of the woods." And the rate of this progress "poses new problems for us."

The difference in wage scales is vast. For example, in this country an assembly-line worker in the auto industry earns $2.44 an hour, and fringe benefits add 50 or 60 cents to that. In England the wage is $1.05 and in Germany 69 cents. German steelworkers earn about a third as much as their U. S. counterparts. Comparable differences have always existed, of course, and in the past American industry has been able to meet and beat wage competition because of superiorities in plant, capital investments, managerial methods and so on. But now, according to Mr. Breech, we have largely lost this advantage — so "the wage differential alone will become increasingly significant to American manufacturing industries."

That brings up a question he poses in these words: "How is America going to face the challenge of swift industrial development abroad — the combination of fast-growing productivity and efficiency with low wage rates that threatens our competitive position, not only in world markets, but also in our domestic market?" The answer, to his mind, does not lie in the adoption of a high-tariff protectionist policy or any such device as that. It does lie, on the other hand, in keeping our manufacturing costs competitive. This demands still more efficient cost-saving machinery and methods in American industry. Here he says: "To do that we must have expanded capital investment. And that, in turn, means that industry must have profits adequate to create and attract that capital — profits that are not excessively taxed or squeezed to death between the pincers of soaring costs and price resistance."

This means, to go on, that the greatest problems lie in halting the present inflationary trend. Everyone knows that the value of the dollar has been deteriorating, and that further deterioration is a clear and present danger now. Various factors have contributed to that end. And the most insidious factor of all, Mr. Breech believes, "has been repeated annual wage gains in excess of productivity."

HEY, YOU SO-CALLED WEATHER PROPHET-

The alternative to stopping inflation is a grim one. At the end, Mr. Breech sums it up thus: "It seems clear that, if the present pattern of inflationary wage increases is permitted to continue, the final consequence must be to price ourselves not only out of foreign markets — but out of our own markets as well. It must in due course lead to a hue and cry for protectionism that would isolate us from the world and greatly diminish our leadership and our influence in the struggle for world peace."

"The American dream lies before us as bright and untarnished as ever. We must not let it be stung to death by the wasp of wage inflation."

The American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps, having passed over its first year since the formation of this organization, the general feeling is that the past year has been very successful. Comrade Clarence Johnson brought before the American Legion the need of a Drum and Bugle Corps and on Dec. 10, 1934, it was decided to lay the foundation for this corps and the instruments were then purchased, nearly $800 being spent on the best instruments. At this meeting the first officers to be elected were pres. Alfred Hanson; vice-president, Clarence Johnson; sec'y-treas., Calvin M. Church; quartermaster, Alvin LaChapelle; drum major, Earl Woods; executive comm., Earl Hewitt and Orel Levan. The organization was derived from a group of ex-service men who had had no experience in music. They struggled through many problems. The instructors, Paul Ziebell and Harold "Spike" MacNiven, came in for a lot of praise and the officers who started the Corps also. The Corps has held dances, parties and the Homecoming to raise funds enough to keep going, and have paid in full for their instruments. Now the fellows are striving to earn funds for some sort of uniform to tour out in and represent their home city.

The Northern Lights won a fast

Fire resulted last Thursday evening at the home of T. P. Peterson, when an electric flatiron was accidentally left attached. St. Francis Holds Business Meeting

Following a supper at the Masonic Temple last Sunday, the parishioners of St. Francis Episcopal Church held their first annual business meeting to review whatever accomplishments there might have been, both monetary and otherwise, in 1958.

Hearing the reports from the various committee chairmen was heartening. Everywhere there was growth. The membership total had risen to 86 baptized persons; the land on M-72 where the church will be built has been paid for and dedicated; the building fund has already been started; and the 1959 budget has been oversubscribed. There is an active Church School with 10 students enrolled, and a weekly Study Group for adults.

The Christmas offering, sent to the other lands through the Bishop's Relief Fund. The women's guild has contributed to six distant institutions, as well as the local Old People's Home.

More could have been done, it is hoped more will be done in the next year, but the record, even now, is one for a young mission to be proud of.

FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS

On The Subject Of Being Friendly

By C. D. Smith

A teenager asks: "How can you be friendly to people you don't like?"

Some of the friends (children of business associates) my parents choose for me and I find it hard to be friendly with them, such as parties, but I can't enjoy myself. Anything I can do about it?"

In the world of business, we can't do our buying and selling on the basis of personalities. If you are a retailer, for example, you must sell to everyone—people you like and people that you may not like. The success of any businessman depends upon his ability to get along with people.

It is not always possible to be friendly to all. But we can draw a line that completely separates our business hours activities. Many highly successful businessmen do more for their business during after-hours social activities than during the regular 8 to 4 business day.

The ability to be friendly and "nice" to people that one doesn't particularly like is a highly desirable trait, not only on a social plane, but in business as well. Of course, it's far better to "like" everyone, if we can. A famous American humorist once said, "I never met a man I couldn't like."

We might think about this remark when we meet someone that we don't like. If we try to know them and understand them, chances are high that we get to like them more and more and we get to know more and more about them.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, write to: C. D. SMITH, ABOUT TEENAGERS, NATIONAL PAPER SERVICE, FRANKFORD, KY.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Larson left Saturday a week ago for Florida, expecting to stay about three weeks. They stopped at Dearborn to pick up Mrs. Larson's mother, Mrs. Minnie Burke, who had been visiting another daughter, Mrs. Nelson Vollmer and family. The family planned to visit the Carltons at West Palm Beach for a short time, and then to tour the state looking up other Michiganers enroute.

John Bruun spent from Tuesday until Friday of last week in Saginaw and Bay City, on business.

Mr. and Mrs. William Heric spent the weekend of January 10th in Plymouth, owing to the death of Mr. Heric's sister, Mrs. Phoebe Shoemaker. Services were held for her Saturday morning at 9:30 at Our Lady of Good Counsel church, Fr. A. Childs officiating. Mrs. Shoemaker and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Heric, were in Grayling residents during her childhood. She is survived by eight children, five girls and three boys, who live in and around the Plymouth area.

A letter from Dr. William T. Shannon tells us he is visiting his son, the Rev. James Shannon, in Washington, D. C. He attended the joint session of Congress January 9th and heard the President's address. This was made possible, he states, by Michigan's Congressman Elford Cederberg, who escorted him to a seat in the gallery after a friendly visit.

LeRoy Akers, Bill Lenkowski, John Peterson, Joe Cinciala, Liwyn Doremire, Jim Duley, Thane Henderson, Floyd San-Carter and Bob LaMotte Sr., were in Flint Saturday and Sunday to take part in the Knights of Columbus bowling tournaments at the Twentieth Century alley, bowling team, doubles and singles events.

John Peterson attended a joint agents' meeting of the Northwestern Mutual Insurance Company at Flint on Friday.

Tom Lamm of Michigan State U. at East Lansing visited his parents, the Fred Lamm, over the weekend.

Harold Rasmussen received word last week that his cousin, Mrs. Margaret Woodfield of Flint, passed away on December 15th. She would have been 82 years old on January 7th. She was a former Grayling resident, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Johnson.

Miss Jennie Ann Sheehy celebrated her 18th birthday with a dinner at her home for six girl friends, then spending the rest of the evening at the winter sports park. Jennie's birthday is really January 2nd, but was celebrated later to separate it somewhat from the holidays.

Mike Sheehy celebrated in another fashion Wednesday of last week, when in practice before the Grayling ski club he broke his right leg, both bones, about four inches above the ankle. His father, Reggie Sheehy, brought him to Grayling Mercy hospital from Otsego Memorial Hospital Thursday.

Clarence Robertson visited his brother Russell and family in Marquette for two weeks recently.

W. D. Griffith of Flint visited his mother, Mrs. E. F. Cooper, Tuesday and Wednesday of last week.

Marshall Sisco, Roy Roper and son Mike drove Mrs. Edward Sisco to Defiance, Ohio Saturday, January 10th to visit her niece who lives at her old home place. Mrs. Sisco has been spending the winter with her daughter Marjorie Roper and family at Grayling.

Mrs. Herluf Sorenson entertained the Lutheran Junior Ladies Aid at her home Tuesday of last week. Officers newly elected at this meeting were Mrs. Don Jensen, president, Mrs. William Sorenson, vice-president, Mrs. Robert Sorenson, treasurer, and Mrs. William MacLeod, secretary.

Kim Malonen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Monte Malonen, had her tonsils removed last Friday morning.

Sport With Ancient Past Enjoys Modern Boom; 150,000 Ski In State

There was a time when you could tell a skier by his jacket. Snowbunnies (beginners) wore a cloth: bulky potato sacks topped with a fancy Tyrolean cloth. But no more. Today it's hard to tell a "sitmarker" from a "steil-hanger"—off the slope anyway.

For with the conversion of millions of men, women and children to the ski-sport, foreign ski experts and instructors invaded the nation's ski areas and brought with them a whole new sports vocabulary (schussboomer; hot-rodder on skis; sitmarker; hole left in the snow by fallen skier), and a fashion trend toward elegantly tailored wind-proof clothing.

Once considered a slow, tedious, and unexciting sport, skiing is now the fastest growing sport on two feet. Its followers number some four million in the nation, and skiing has become a $14 million industry in Michigan, according to the state Tourist Council.

Behavior of this winter cult may seem a bit peculiar to the non-skier. At the first sight of snow clouds that send most of us scurrying for the nearest fireplace, the dedicated skier takes to the hills. And in Michigan, this season, three more snow-making machines (now totaling nine), additional rope tows, T-bars, Poma-lifts, and another chair lift have been added to this vacation state's winter sports facilities, the council reports.

But skiing, of course, is old as the hills. It all began in Norway some 7,000 years ago. According to historians of the sport, skis were first used during the battle of Oslo in 1200 A. D. Earliest skiers, they tell us, were made from animal bones and strapped to the skiers' feet with leather thongs. This primitive contraption later evolved into 12-ft. timbers steered by a single long pole. With this rudimentary ski, the sport caught on and spread from Norway to the Alps in the late 1800's and by immigration to the United States.

In Michigan the sport of skiing has been around for more than half a century. Ishpeming in the state's upper peninsula, has been holding ski-jumping tournaments since 1887, and the National Ski Association was organized there in 1904. Ishpeming also boasts the National Ski Association and Hall of Fame.

Yet, even a decade ago, skiing was not generally popular, except with a fringe of the college crowd. Hiking on the long slabs of wood and climbing uphill "heringbone" style was tricky, not to mention hard work. And jumping was for daredevils in the newsreels. But downhill skiing this was real sport—if you could get to the top of the slope.

So when the chance came to ride up and schuss down, as long as your legs and skis held out, the fun really began. And skiing's fantastic growth got underway.

Now with fast and easy uphill transportation by every conceivable means except the skier's feet, and ski slopes practically in the backyard, skiing is everyman's (and woman's) winter sport.

This season the Michigan Tourist Council's statewide ski-map available on request lists 69 winter sports centers in operation. "They cater to beginners as well as would-be experts," says Robert J. Furlong, council executive secretary. "For the trend toward family-type recreation, and this means little sitmarks beside the big ones."

Michigan's ski slopes range in length from 500 to 6,000 feet, he said, the longest being at Boyne Mt. Lodge in the northwestern part of the state's lower peninsula. And the world's highest artificial ski jump is a butter-slippy slide down a 156-ft. high scaffold at Pine Mt. Lodge near Iron Mountain in the upper peninsula.

Six new ski centers opened for the first time this winter, while other resorts are offering ski enthusiasts expanded facilities. The Michigan tourist chief said. Nine of the state's 69 areas manufacture their own snow to insure a longer skiing season and more reliable conditions in marginal snowfall areas.

Michigan ski center offerings include cross-country trails, slalom bowls and ski-jumps. Toboggan runs and skating rinks also are featured at many areas. And for indoor enjoyment there are restaurants, snack bars, lounges and warming shelters. Skiing equipment can be rented at most centers and several Michigan resorts offer "ski week end" packages which include lodging, meals equipment and instruction.

Interest in Michigan skiing has been booming since 1953 when there were 38 ski centers in the state hosting some 65,000 skiers, said Furlong. By the end of the 1958-59 season, at least 150,000 skiers will have skied Michigan slopes, averaging three trips each, he forecasts, "weather permitting, of course." On the basis of

Skiing is a spine-tingling sport, a multi-million dollar business, a fashion and an adventurous recreation all wrapped into one. But whatever you call it, the thousands who visit Michigan each winter, skiing is a recreation that ranges from an excuse to get outdoors in winter to a way of life. "If you don't ski," the tourist says, "you probably will; if you have skied, you undoubtedly will again."

Fredrick P.T.A. Holds
January Meeting

The Fredrick P.T.A. met January 20th at the school. The meeting was well attended on due to the slippery roads many were unable to attend. Those who planned it, some of the teachers and at least several non classes and so were unable to attend.

Several items of business were acted upon, and then Carroll, who presented a one-hour film of the many wonders of Crawford County during the different seasons including our Michigan neighbors. One must see the county's attractions in film to realize the surprising amount of beauty within our own borders. Heavy thanks to Mr. Ware.

Following the film a luncheon was served by the volunteer committee.

February 7th the U. S. Air Force basketball team from the Kansas City will meet the Thunderground Fredrick team at 8 o'clock at the Fredrick High gymnasium.

The Lawrence City team has won 26 games in the 197-58 season and 13 are in this season. They requested the match with the Thunderground Fredrick boys, who are also undefeated so far this year.

The Fredrick P.T.A. is sponsoring the game for the benefit of a fund for the girls' basketball team equipment.
